BOROUGH COUNCIL NEWS

By Michael Ticktin

Council Adopts Ordinances Appropriating Funds for Final Testing at Gas Station Site and for Repaving and Reconstruction of Oscar Drive; Proposed Ordinance Concerning Zoning Requirements for Houses of Worship Introduced

At its August 13 meeting, the Borough Council adopted two ordinances involving appropriations of capital improvement funds for two projects—the completion of work at the former gas station property and the repaving and reconstruction of Oscar Drive.

The Licensed Site Remediation Professional (LSRP) overseeing the remediation project at the gas station site determined several months ago that additional testing and monitoring would be necessary in order to determine that groundwater quality met Department of Environmental Protection standards, a necessary precondition to the issuance of an approval by the LSRP that would allow the property, which the Borough acquired over a decade ago by tax lien foreclosure, to be sold and redeveloped. An appropriation of $14,000 for this purpose was approved by ordinance, as is required for capital improvements. The Council also adopted a resolution authorizing an agreement regarding this work with T. Slack Engineering Services.

The other ordinance adopted by the Council authorized a total appropriation of $310,000 for the repaving and reconstruction, as required, of the existing roadway of Oscar Drive. Of these funds, $200,000 consists of grant funds expected to be received from the New Jersey Department of Transportation, $40,000 is a down payment made from the municipal capital improvement fund and the remaining amount not to exceed $70,000 will come from proceeds of the sale of bonds or notes.

The Council also approved on first reading, meaning that it was formally proposed and can be adopted only after public notice and hearing, an ordinance specifying that any new houses of worship may only be constructed in the residential/agricultural (R/Ag-400) zone, in accordance with the standards for that zone. Provisions of the zoning ordinance allowing houses of worship as conditional uses in the R-40 residential zone and in the commercial zone would be repealed. Any expansion of an existing house of worship would have to be in accordance with the standards, including set-back standards, applicable to the R/Ag-400 zone, which are proposed to be amended to require a 75 foot setback. Since this proposed ordinance would amend the zoning ordinance, it must be

Dear Neighbors,

Congratulations to Roosevelt on its 75th Anniversary! Despite many challenges over the years, Roosevelt has remained very true to its original design, thanks to the effective efforts of past and present Councils, Planning Boards and concerned citizens who stepped up to preserve the concept of New Jersey Homesteads. We have a lot to make us proud; especially the Roosevelt Arts Project, the Roosevelt Public School, our wonderful Emergency services: the First Aid Squad and the Fire Department, and the Roosevelt Bulletin.

The trees have certainly grown up in the open spaces and many of the houses have added peaked roofs and there certainly are quite a few more cars, but I think an original settler would recognize the town and feel right at home (although the cinder block factory has been replaced with a new neighborhood). The factory no longer makes garments, the store is (temporarily) closed and the produce farms are not all producing edible crops, but times do change, mostly for the better.

Please be sure to come out on the weekend of September 22nd and 23rd and renew acquaintances with your neighbors and your town. And to all those who have worked so hard to make the weekend a success: Thank you!

From the Office of CSA/Principal

I hope that everyone is off to a great 2012-2013 school year! Roosevelt Public School has been a busy place this summer. We hired our new first grade teacher, Ms. Alexandra Jones to replace Mrs. Gagliardi who retired. We also had vacancies develop in our Music and Spanish areas. So we have a new Music teacher, Ms. Jessica Wilson and a new Spanish teacher, Mrs. Heidi Falanga. All three newly hired teachers come to Roosevelt with a passion and enthusiasm for educating our students and advancing our school forward.

We are pleased to announce that the Roosevelt Public School has been approved and named a “Choice

School” for the 2013-2014 school year by the New Jersey Department of Education. This means that the 2012-2013 school year will be the last year that the Roosevelt Public School will be accepting tuition students in grades Kindergarten through Sixth. After this school year, all tuition students will automatically become part of the Choice Program and will be funded through the New Jersey Department of Inter-District Public School Choice Program. We will continue to keep class sizes small (no more than a 17 to 1, student to teacher ratio), and keep the district moving forward in all areas of instruction and programs.

Finally, it is with a sincere heart, that I wish the Roosevelt Public School and the town of Roosevelt my best wishes. My time here was short, but we accomplished many things together, and I am appreciative of the opportunity given to me.

Sincerely,
Dr. Joseph S. Campisi

MISSION

To educate and inspire all students to excel academically, to become independent and creative thinkers, skillful communicators and lifelong learners. Roosevelt Public School nurtures and challenges the unique potential of each student so that our children will develop individual, social and civic responsibility as well as respect for themselves, each other, and the environment.*

Meet our new Administrators

The Board is proud to announce that we have recently hired a new Business Administrator, Bert Arifaj, and a new Interim CSA/Principal, Stephanie Bilenker. The Board is continuing the CSA/Prin search with interviews scheduled for September and a possible permanent placement for January 1, 2013.

Roosevelt to be named Choice School in 2013

Roosevelt has been approved as a Choice School for 2013 for grades K-6. Children from other districts may apply for entry and the state will pay for their tuition – at a rate approximately double what the current families have been paying. This money will be used to offset the expenses of the district and to build the district reserve. The application process begins in Fall 2012. Please check our website (www.rps1.org) for further details.

RPS Pre-K will not be part of the Choice Program, but will continue to accept tuition-paying out-of-district children when room is available.

Roosevelt Students Can Attend a Top-Ranked U.S. High School – For Free!

Students in Monmouth County are eligible to apply to any one of five full-time specialized high schools, two of which – High Tech High School in Lincroft, and Biotech High in Freehold – are ranked among the best schools in the nation by U.S. News and World Report as well as Newsweek.

The career academies are part of the Monmouth County Vocational School District (MCVSD), which accepts qualifying students who are full-time residents of Monmouth County. Interested middle school students should attend a scheduled information session sponsored by MCVSD, where they can receive application materials.

The five academies in the MCVSD system are: Academy of Allied Health and Sciences (Neptune); Biotechnology High School (Freehold); Communications High School (Wall); High Technology High School (Lincroft); and Marine Academy of Science and Technology (Sandy Hook).

The deadline for admission is December 9, 2012. Applicants must attend one of the scheduled information sessions in order to be considered eligible.

In addition Roosevelt students can attend Hightstown High School for ½ day and then attend one of two vocational schools: Career Center in Freehold (Freshman through Senior Year) or Mercer County Technical Schools (Junior and Senior years).

To learn more about upcoming information sessions and the application process, visit the Monmouth County Vocational School District website at www.mcvsd.org submitted to the Planning Board for review before the Council can take further action to adopt it.

Councilman Tom Curry reported that the ceiling in the municipal garage had been repaired and that the Monmouth County Highway Department, which has contracted with the Borough to clean out storm sewers, will be asked to take necessary action to correct the flooding that occurred in the storm sewer on Pine Drive during recent heavy rains. Councilman Jeff Ellentuck reported that the municipal “reverse 911” system, which is designed to provide information to residents in an emergency, will soon be operational. He also said that the Borough is seeking quotes for extension of the garage so that it can accommodate the new fire truck and advised residents that, in light of several recent burglaries in and around Roosevelt, they should be careful to keep their doors locked.

In other action, the Council adopted a motion authorizing use of the Borough Hall and the FDR Memorial Amphitheater for activities celebrating the 75th anniversary of the municipal incorporation of Jersey Homesteads (as Roosevelt was called until 1945) and approved participation in the Monmouth County Historical Commission’s “Weekend in Old Monmouth” self-guided tour program, which is scheduled for May 4-5, 2013. Councilman Ralph Warnick reported that participation had already been approved by the Board of Education, which is involved because it is the custodian of the community’s most prominent artistic treasure, the Shahn mural in the school library, and would have to allow the mural and the other exhibits there to be accessible to visitors.

In Memoriam Dolores Chasan

By James Chasan and Mark Chasan

Dolores Chasan innovative educator and caring soul Sept 1927 -May 2012

She was born on the 2nd of September, 1927 in the Bronx in New York City to Rose & Jack Greenfield and had two older siblings, a brother Will Greenfield, and a sister May Green. Her parents had one other daughter who died as a very young infant about two years before Dolores was born. She moved with her family to Jersey Homesteads, later named Roosevelt, in the early months of 1939.

She attended and graduated from the Roosevelt Public School and the Allentown High School.

Her father and two of his brothers designed and manufactured ladies hats in NYC. They all came to Roosevelt to begin a new partnership with the Kartiganer Hat Company, which they housed in the factory building in Roosevelt for a number of years. The Greenfield and Kartiganer families were Hungarian and good friends before coming to town.

At around the age of 13 she befriended Lenore Hirschberg who used to come to Roosevelt to visit her own relatives, the Sorasky family, during the summers and who later married Dolores's brother Will. They remained very close friends right up until Dolores's passing.

And summers from around the age of 10 to 14 she would visit cousins near Cleveland on her mother's side of the family and told stories about how she was sent to bail 'Toots' out of jail for running illegal bingo games. Toots's husband it seems was kind of associated with Bugsy Siegel and Meyer Lansky.

During the war, Dolores performed administrative accounting work at Fort Dix. She was a bit nervous when applying for the job as she was underage, but was happily surprised when the person to whom she showed her older sister's ID to augment her age, was none other than a neighbor, Pearl Hecht (Seligman). Accepted for the job, she was soon driving herself around in a Lieutenant's jeep until a few months later a General caught wind of her underage status and was subsequently assigned a driver.

Dolores married her childhood friend Howard Chasan in a ceremony held in the gym of Roosevelt Public School in 1946 after he returned from serving with the Marines in the Pacific in WWII. They had two sons, James and Mark.

In addition to raising a family during the early years of her marriage, she not only continued to work first as a substitute, and later full time teacher in Roosevelt, but she also continued to go to college during the summers and nights for 12 years, obtaining a post graduate degree from Trenton State College which later became recognized as a PHD in Educational Learning Disabilities.

She taught for many years in the Roosevelt Public School, eventually becoming its learning consultant, and its principal at two different times. She also worked as a learning consultant for the Hightstown schools system.

During the 1970-71 school year, Dolores was awarded a Fullbright-Hayes Scholarship which allowed her to become a visiting teacher at the Garford-Frillford CE School in England for grades 7-11. She brought her special gift of creativity with her, and broke British rules by having her students write letters to the Queen Mother. People were so surprised when they actually got replies, that it made headlines in the local newspaper there. Her son Mark, who at age 15 got to go to England with Dolores, learned most of his soccer skills there, and also became a bell ringer in Marcham, the town they lived in, where he was presented with his own rope at the end of the year. During her stay in Marcham, Dolores also studied the "Designing of Educational Material" at the North Berkshire College of Further Education in the town of Abbingdon. In addition to her Fullbright-Hayes scholarship to England, Dolores also received a New Jersey Mini Grant Award from 1970-1972 and a Graduate Fellowship from Trenton State College in 1976.

Dolores' accomplishments in the field of education led her to become the Director of the learning department for Brain Injuries at the St. Lawrence Rehabilitation Center Hospital for well over a decade. In spite of her busy schedule there, she still put in many precious hours a week, as a volunteer tutor for foreign post-doctoral students at Princeton University, to help improve their English language skills.

During what little additional free time she had, Dolores was brilliant at the sewing machine, creating many of her own dresses and capes. There was almost nowhere in the house where one could sit down without the fear of being the victim of one of her pins or needles.

Over the years, Dolores and Howard made many trips together to Europe and also to St Maarten in the Caribbean where her sister May lived. As she was a bit uneasy about flying, her son Mark (who later studied acupuncture) cured her of that problem at an early age with a beautiful silver whiskey travel flask.

Even in her later years, Dolores remained intensely active. She not only continued to work with challenged persons, helping them learn, but was also involved with local politics and women's rights issues, volunteered at the McCarter and Peddie theaters helping people find their seats and also arranged to have the Monmouth County 'meals on wheels' program reinstated in Roosevelt.

Not too many years ago, she was one of the true driving forces behind a group which after much struggle made history by having a mayor in a New Jersey town removed from office by a recall election for the first time.

In the fall of 2010 she was invited by The Roosevelt Arts Project to be a guest speaker along with a few other residents, to tell the stories of their experiences in town. The evening was well attended and recorded on video.

After Howard died in March of 2007 Dolores lived on her own in Roosevelt, drove herself around, took care of her own shopping, visited and was visited by friends till her last days.

She was even able to make some distant trips, which included the weddings of her grand niece Sarah Greenfield in Minneapolis and that of Rachel Chasan in Warnerville, NY in the summer of 2010 .

Dolores and Howard both donated their bodies to the NJ University of Medicine and Dentistry and one day their ashes will be reunited.

She is survived by two sons, James and Mark and their spouses (more fun than spouses) Nermin & Peggy, her sister-in-law Lenore Greenfield as well three nephews Marc Lipman, Steve Greenfield, Paul Greenfield, their children, cousins, and many dear friends.

She made a difference in so many lives along the way. We miss her and remember her and were better off for knowing her.

There will be a memorial service held for Dolores in Roosevelt on September 22, 2012 at the Borough Hall from 10:30-noon.

Health Notes:

Head Injury

Head injury refers to trauma of the head. This may or may not include injury to the brain. However, the terms traumatic brain injury and head injury are often used interchangeably in medical literature.

The incidence (number of new cases) of head injury is 300 of every 100,000 per year (0.3% of the population), with a mortality rate of 25 per 100,000 in North America and 9 per 100,000 in Britain. Head trauma is a common cause of childhood hospitalization.

Classification

Head injuries include both injuries to the brain and those to other parts of the head, such as the scalp and skull. Head injuries may be closed or open. A closed (non-missile) head injury is where the dura mater remains intact. The skull can be fractured, but not necessarily. A penetrating head injury occurs when an object pierces the skull and breaches the dura mater. Brain injuries may be diffuse, occurring over a wide area, or focal, located in a small, specific area. A head injury may cause skull fracture, which may or may not be associated with injury to the brain. Some patients may have linear or depressed skull fractures.

If intracranial hemorrhage occurs, a hematoma within the skull can put pressure on the brain. Types of intracranial hemorrhage include subdural, subarachnoid, extradural, and intraparenchymal hematoma. Craniotomy surgeries are used in these cases to lessen the pressure by draining off blood.

Brain injury can be at the site of impact, but can also be at the opposite side of the skull due to a contrecoup effect (the impact to the head can cause the brain to move within the skull, causing the brain to impact the interior of the skull opposite the head-impact).

If the impact causes the head to move, the injury may be worsened, because the brain may ricochet inside the skull causing additional impacts, or the brain may stay relatively still (due to inertia) but be hit by the moving skull (both are contrecoup injuries).

- Skull fracture
- Lacerations to the scalp and resulting hemorrhage of the skin
- Traumatic subdural hematoma, a bleeding below the dura mater which may develop slowly
- Traumatic extradural, or epidural hematoma, bleeding between the dura mater and the skull
- Traumatic subarachnoid hemorrhage
- Cerebral contusion, a bruise of the brain
- Concussion, a loss of function due to trauma
- Dementia pugilistica, or "punch-drunk syndrome", caused by repetitive head injuries, for example in boxing or other contact sports
- A severe injury may lead to a coma or death.
- Shaken Baby Syndrome - a form of child abuse

Signs and symptoms

Presentation varies according to the injury. Some patients with head trauma stabilize and other patients deteriorate. A patient may present with or without neurologic deficit.

Patients with concussion may have a history of seconds to minutes unconsciousness, then normal arousal. Disturbance of vision and equilibrium may also occur.

Common symptoms of head injury include coma, confusion, drowsiness, personality change, seizures, nausea and vomiting, headache and a lucid interval, during which a patient appears conscious only to deteriorate later.

Symptoms of skull fracture can include:

- Leaking cerebrospinal fluid (a clear fluid drainage from nose, mouth or ear, or) may be and is strongly indicative of basilar skull fracture and the tearing of sheaths surrounding the brain, which can lead to secondary brain infection.

To Roosevelt First Aid Squad:

On behalf of the Freehold First Aid Squad, I would like to personally thank you for your assistance during the Haz-Mat/Mass Casualty Incident on June 18, 2012, at the Monmouth County Courthouse, 71 Monument Street, Freehold, New Jersey.

With your help we successfully and safely transported a total of 40 patients to ContraState Medical Center and Jersey Shore University Medical Center. I wanted to assure you, on behalf of Freehold First Aid Squad, that your Squad's willingness to provide crews when we truly needed assistance for this incident has not gone unnoticed. We are grateful for the services provided by each of the responding First Aid Squads, specifically: Freehold, Colts Neck, Farmingdale, Howell, Howell Police EMS, Manalapan, Marlboro, Ramtown, Roosevelt, Shark River and MONOC (BLS/ALS). It was indeed reassuring to see how our townships are able to seamlessly work hand-in-hand to provide the most comprehensive and professional emergency medical treatment to each of the patients we transported and cared for on the scene.

Thank you once again for your time, support and dedication to the citizens of Monmouth County.

Sincerely,

- visible deformity or depression in the head or face; for example, a sunken eye can indicate a maxillar fracture
- an eye that cannot move or is deviated to one side can indicate that a broken facial bone is pinching a nerve that innervates eye muscles
- wounds or bruises on the scalp or face.
- Basilar skull fractures, those that occur at the base of the skull, are associated with Battle's sign, a subcutaneous bleed over the mastoid, hemotympanum, and cerebrospinal fluid rhinorrhea and otorrhea.

Because brain injuries can be life threatening, even people with apparently slight injuries, with no noticeable signs or complaints, require close observation; They have a chance for severe symptoms later on. The caretakers of those patients with mild trauma who are released from the hospital are frequently advised to rouse the patient several times during the next 12 to 24 hours to assess for worsening symptoms.

The Glasgow Coma Scale is a tool for measuring degree of unconsciousness and is thus a useful tool for determining severity of injury. The Pediatric Glasgow Coma Scale is used in young children.

Any kind of head injury can lead to death don't delay call 9-1-1.

June and July

The first month of summer in Roosevelt brought five days with 90+ degree heat. There was one heat wave (defined as 3 or more consecutive days of 90+ degree high temperatures) in June and the beginning of another heat wave that lasted from June 29 through July 7. That was the longest heat wave of the two months. July had another heat wave from July 15 through the 18th.

There was an incredible 14 days of 90+ degree high temperatures in Roosevelt during July. That's almost half the month with 90+ heat. The normal average number of days with 90+ heat in July is 8. The hottest day during June and July was July 7 when the mercury topped out at 99.1 degrees.

The average temperature for June was 1.2 degrees above normal. July 2012's average temperature was 3 degrees above normal.

The total rainfall for the two months combined is just a bit above normal. June had a little less than normal rainfall and July a little more than normal rainfall. Heavy thunderstorms on July 28 dumped almost 3 and a half inches of rain, making it the wettest day of June and July.

Nationally, June's hot temperatures made the 12 month period from July 1, 2011 through June 30, 2012 the hottest 12 month period the nation has experienced since records started to be kept in 1895.

Global land temperature tied with 2002 as the third warmest July on record, at 1.66°F above the 20th century average of 57.8°F). The margin of error is ±0.23°F. July marked the 36th consecutive July and 329th consecutive month with a global temperature above the 20th century average. The last below-average temperature July was July 1976 and the last below-average temperature month was February 1985.

Outlook for September

The Climate Prediction Center is calling for a warmer than normal September. There are equal chances for above, below, or normal precipitation.

The Old Farmer's Almanac predicts a cooler and dryer than normal September. LongRangeWeather.com predicts a cooler and wetter than normal September.

Weather Joke

A married couple is fast asleep when suddenly the phone rings. The groggy husband answers it, expecting the worst. After listening a few seconds, he shouts, "How should I know? Who do you think I am, the weather man?" and slams down the receiver. "Who was that?" asks his wife. "I don't know; some guy wanting to know if the coast is clear."

Weather Word

SCATTERING is the process by which small particles suspended in the air diffuse a portion of the incident radiation in all directions. This is a primary reason for colors, such as blue skies, rainbows, and orange sunsets. When working with radars, this often refers to the more or less random changes in direction of radio energy.

Alan Mallach will give a talk on the famous mural (11:30 a.m.), and Ben Johnson will show his video tracing the architectural history of Roosevelt, produced with Fletcher Grayson (12:00 p.m.). Look for times for this to be aired on your local PBS station.

NPR will be filming some of the festivities. Be sure to tune in to Marketplace on NPR for a program on the Roosevelt 75th Anniversary Celebration. Look for times for this to be aired on your local PBS station.

My neighbor, Margaret Katz (a 3rd grandma to my kids), gave me this recipe that she was going to try when her granddaughter comes to visit. Kelby and I tried it one of these crazy hot days (really, who wants to use the oven in August; but, on second thought, who doesn't want cookies?). Kelby wouldn't even lick the mixing bowl because the cookie dough had oatmeal in it. (Remember when your mom said, "I hope you have kids JUST LIKE YOU!?" Well, I do.) However, somehow after the cookies had hardened she loved these cookies—oatmeal and all.

Mom's No-Bake Crazy Cookies of Incomparable Delight from Vocalpoint

1 cup natural peanut butter
3 cups oatmeal
2 cups of sugar
4 tbsp unsweetened cocoa powder
(Dutch-pressed if you have it)
1 stick of butter
½ cup milk

1 cup nuts (optional – if using, try walnut or pecan pieces)
Whatever filler you like—coconut,
M&Ms, chocolate chips, raisins. . .
(except my chocolate chips melted into the cookies)

Makes about 2 dozen cookies, depending on the size of your scoops

Bring the sugar, cocoa, butter, and milk to a simmer in a large pan, stirring or whisking until the sugar is dissolved and the ingredients are combined. When combined, remove from heat and add in the rest of the ingredients, stirring until it all comes together. The "dough" will be sticky and smell like a dream come true. Scoop pieces of the dough big as you like onto waxed paper and let cool. When cool, they'll be less sticky and quite easy to handle. Dangerously easy. Enjoy with a tall glass of milk while catching up with your loved ones.

In one of 24 cookies: 207 calories, 10 g fat,
10.6 mg cholesterol, 59 mg sodium,
23 mg potassium, 26 carbohydrates,
17.5 g cookies, 4 g protein.
